Introduction

Kia ora — if you are receiving this supervision partnership booklet you are either: a student on our course or supervising a student on our course. Regardless of if you are a student or a supervisor, we hope that your supervision journey this year is a good one. Please read this booklet carefully, feel free to take notes throughout — it is yours to keep.

About Praxis

Praxis is a network of practitioners in youth and community work. Praxis operates in partnerships with community groups, churches, mission organisations. Our aim is to support youth workers to connect with, and serve their local communities. The course is focused around this goal.

About the course

Praxis is a private training establishment that has been granted registration by the New Zealand Qualifications Authority under Part 18 of the Education Act 1989..

NZQA has given Praxis an External Quality Assurance of Provider Category 2

- 10 October 2019: NZQA is Confident in the educational performance of Praxis
- 10 October 2019: NZQA is Confident in the capability in self-assessment of Praxis

Praxis offers two courses.

- A level 4 (1 year) Certificate Health & Wellbeing (Praxis Certificate in Youth Development)
- A level 6 (2 year) Diploma in Youth Development

What is supervision about?

Supervision is a requirement of the Praxis course. Our hope is that the student will be guided by their supervisor to reflect on their practical youth work, as well as to work through what is going on for them personally over the year.

Each student will need to meet with their supervisor at least ten times over the year.

Choosing a supervisor

We strongly suggest that a supervisor is:

- Older than you
- A good listener
- Has the time and resource to meet ten times over the year
- Physically close to where you are living or working (zoom is okay, but face to face is better)
- Part of your faith community
- The same gender

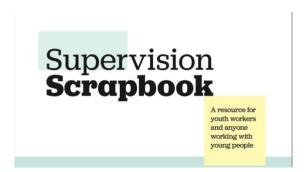

Your supervisor will need to be approved by your local tutor and agency rep.

We will not approve someone:

- Who is the student's manager, or who we feel is too close to the structure that employs them.
- Who is a member of family or a friend

Part 1: Understanding Supervision

» What is it? Defining supervision

What comes to mind when you think of the word 'supervision'?

You might initially think it's someone who monitors and oversees your work. However, in youth work, it's much more than that. It might help to hyphenate the word.

Supervision is all about getting some super-vision on your work. It essentially asks the question: how super is your vision? Or, how well do you see the work you do?

Start by focusing on the vision first. The vision helps us see what's really happening with greater clarity. It involves another pair of eyes. This vision embraces hindsight on past events, allows insight into the meaning of these events and prepares foresight for your future practice.

It's super because you're engaging with someone else who can offer an objective perspective. 'Super' in this case means extra or additional. It's not necessarily super because the supervisor is better than you!

Super-vision is A relationship Structured Relational Focused on work Regular. Parallel to on-going and youth work uninterrupted Purposeful A chance to reflect Self care Holistic Somewhere to learn new stuff Confidential Essential in Fun youth work A place of support (to better support others) Safe, ethical and Look at this brainstorm. You might want to add some of your own ideas. Are any of these irrelevant qualities in our work with young people? Most of the supervision relationship parallels our youth work relationships. Therefore, if we expect others to accept our help, support and leadership, shouldn't we seek support and accept guidance ourselves?

This brainstorm is inspired by Carroll (2014), Carroll & Gilbert (2011), Davys (2007), Davys & Beddoe (2010), Morrison (2001) and O'Donoghue (1998).

accountable

"Supervision is a joint endeavour in which a practitioner with the help of a supervisor, attends to their clients, themselves as part of their client practitioner relationships and the wider systemic context, and by doing so improves the quality of their work, transforms their client relationships, continuously develops themselves, their practice and the wider profession."

(Hawkins & Shohet, 2012, p60)

» Why have it? Purpose of supervision

There are plenty of good reasons why youth workers should participate in supervision. Here are eight reasons:

- Better relationships with young people
- Time out for reflective space by pausing our practice
- Learning more explicitly from experience
- · Get someone else's perspective
- Chance to identify strengths and weaknesses
- Measure personal response to professional matters
- · Accountability
- · Ethical maturity increases.

Adapted from Carroll, 2007

What are some of your reasons for having supervision?

In February 2014, Rod asked some new youth work students in their first year with Praxis "why have supervision?" and they said:

- * To get a bigger picture
- * To be motivated
- * To focus and remind yourself why you're doing youth work
- * To get rid of baggage and lighten the load
- * To ensure you're not too overwhelmed or anxious
- To do life with people who have been there, done that
- * To learn what you don't know and what you do but might have forgotten.

These wise youth workers also described supervision as a journey and they cautioned fellow youth workers "don't avoid supervision if you feel like you've got nothing. You need the processing space."

» Functions of supervision

The functions of supervision provide some guidelines about what supervision can focus on. We offer three core functions: youth work supervision needs to be supporting you, enabling your learning and managing your work. At first this might seem overly simplistic, however when we list all the things supervision can do, everything on the list is probably covered by at least one of the functions. We have translated and synthesised the functions from several other disciplines, including counselling (Proctor, 2008), psychotherapy (Hawkins & Shohet, 2012) and social work (Kadushin, 1976).

Supervision Scrapbook by Rod Baxter and Trissel Eriksen, 2018 | www.arataiohi.org.nz

All three pieces of the function pie should be present in your supervision. Some youth workers use these three functions as headings to guide the agenda each time. One supervision session may focus on your feelings of stress, and the next might be about your training needs. Sometimes you might focus on one function for a few months, like a 'season'. The important thing is to balance a mixture of all three functions for your overall supervision experience. If you find supervision focuses on just one function most of the time, then it might be time to discuss with your supervisor.

Future supervision (based on my Supervision History)

What I'd change or like to do differently with future supervision experiences

What I will keep and bring forward into future supervision relationships

» Hopes, fears and expectations

- 1. How come you need supervision?
- 2. Describe your youth work worldview (values, kaupapa, style, beliefs); how will this be reflected in the supervision relationship?

- 3. How do you expect supervision will sit within your support network?
- 4. What do you hope to learn in supervision?

26 Supervision Scrapbook by Rod Baxter and Trissel Eriksen, 2018 | www.arataiohi.org.nz

- 5. What do you need to be held accountable for?
- 6. Do you have any reservations or fears about supervision?

- 7. What do you hope supervision will be, in an ideal world?
- 8. What are your goals for supervision?

You might choose to share these responses with a new supervisor. These questions are particularly useful when you're devising a supervision agreement.

» Interview questions

Once you've clarified what kind of supervisor you're looking for, an introductory meeting/session is a good reality check for these expectations. Here's an interview schedule you may like to use to guide your first session:

It is also a good idea to bring a situation or issue to your first meeting as a 'tester' to discover how you both behave in the environment.

What experience do you have working with young people?	5. What are your expectations of me?
What experience and/or qualifications in supervision do you have?	6. What does supervision cost?
How would you describe your dominant values kaupapa and/or worldview?	7. What is your preferred model for giving and receiving feedback?
4. Are you a member of Korowai Tupu or any other professional bodies?	8. How will we evaluate supervision?
Adapted from Carroll & Gilbert, 2006, p18).	35

» Collaborative contracting questions:

photocopy and cut-up

These collaborative contracting cards were created by Rod Baxter, Mike Dodge, Rachel Sangster, Ange Williams and Vaughan Fenton on Wednesday 27 January 2016 at Canterbury Youth Services in a workshop called 'Extending Youth Work Supervisor Skills', inspired by an article by Margaret Morrell (2008). The cards were published by Strengthening the Youth Sector and Canterbury Youth Workers Collective.

We recommend you and your supervisor consider these questions together. You might select and prioritise a few questions to start with, add to your agreement document and add further questions with each review.

Add your own questions!

What do we do first?

- 1. Part of the student's enrolment is giving this supervision booklet to you (their supervisor). Please have a look through this booklet and decide whether you are able to commit to the supervisor requirements.
- 2. If the answer is yes, thank you! You will now need to have an introductory session with the student. During this session it is important that you:
 - Set the boundaries of the session together by completing the supervision agreement.
 - Read though the supervision booklet together.
 - If you are supervising a Year 1 student they will have a small assignment to complete about supervision (AT1) in their first workbook.
 - Email the supervision agreement to your tutor.

A Praxis team member will be in contact with you (the supervisor) to make sure you have everything you need.

3. We ask each supervisor to take part in a review of the student. This is in the middle of the year with agency rep, tutor and student. The supervisor will meet with the student prior to the review to give them feedback on how they are doing (sticking with our no surprises policy).

Who can I contact?

Everyone in Praxis works part time -and does other useful stuff in their church or community. So (right after we finish saving the world), we'll always call you back if you can't get us first time.

Praxis Code of Ethics for Supervisors

As a Supervisor we ask you to make a commitment to these values:

We are not responsible for the personal choices that our supervisee makes

We confront people about the choices that they are making, and their consequences, but we don't make anyone's mind up for them.

We take responsibility to regularly uphold our supervisee in prayer.

We agree to make supervision culturally safe by consulting others on issues that may have a cultural component and by being personally committed to our own ongoing learning in this area.

We encourage, even in the most comprehensive mess!

We don't use the weaknesses and failings of our supervisee as a basis for humour among our colleagues.

We agree to keep each other (ourselves and our colleagues) open and accountable about the nature of our relationships with any person we are in a supervision relationship with.

We agree to act with integrity, being faithful to do the things that we have promised. And where we fail in this, to seek forgiveness and reconciliation at the earliest possible opportunity.

We agree to accept mediation, wherever this is requested by the supervisee.

We don't discuss personal issues raised in supervision sessions with others unless we have the permission of the supervisee to do so. The exception to this rule is a situation where others are endangered by our silence.

Guidelines for Supervision;

We ask that a minimum of 10 sessions to be completed by the end of the year. Supervisors, students and Praxis tutor please sign the guidelines form after each session.

Students are required to keep a journal, while studying with Praxis. A journal is provided on the next few pages, for you and your student to use if you want. This is a confidential document between supervisors and students. Praxis staff just need to sight this, but will not be reading content.
